This sweet girl and her loved ones have been on my mind since I learned of this tragedy. When I was a young woman my fiancé was killed in a car accident (meanwhile my mother was dying of cancer). I just couldn't understand why. Why do things like that happen to the most wonderful people? I couldn't quit asking why. As my mother lay on her death bed she told me it was because God needed another angel. As simple and trite as that answer may sound, it did satisfy me. Maybe it really is just as simple as God needed the tragedy to happen in order to somehow serve a greater purpose. This beautiful young lady's death cannot be in vain.

—Rev. M. Stevens

Forgive me, Lord, for wondering why. The thorns live on and the roses die. Rest In Peace, Beautiful Girl. Love and prayers from Missouri.

I just happened upon the story, and it made me sad because she seems like such a sweet person who did not deserve harm from anyone. She now shines brightly above, just as she did here on Earth. I offer very sincere condolences to the Ferguson family, I am very sorry for your loss. RIP sweet angel, fly high! May you rest in peace.

Brittany, You touched so many lives simply with how charismatic, funny, and pure of heart that you was. Your life has ended far to short, and I know that you're in a better place sharing your love to many. I hope that you and your family know just how many people you have touched with your kindness whether it was small or big. So many have shed tears, and laughter with you, and are at an utter loss at your absence. Fly high beautiful girl, and let your light shine on all.
