I never got to meet this lovely woman, but my best friend and one of her beloved granddaughters, Emily Wyles, told be about her a couple of times. Just from the few, short stories I heard, I know that she will be missed and remembered for decades to come. I hope Geraldine is able to rest in peace now. Reunited with her husband and parents, and happily waiting to see the rest of her family again one day. My sincerest condolences to everyone in the family, including those I haven't met. I'm sure she will have many furry little friends keeping her company.
