I remember when Lori was born, and the years of her growing up. My mom kept a photo of Lori in her Caspar the Ghost Halloween costume. Mom loved Lori and got a chuckle at things she said. I knew my cousin had health problems for a long time, but talking with her online on May 1, I was completely unaware that she would pass away a week later. I was going to find that photo, and would have sent it to her. She told me how much she loved her Aunt Annie, who carried her around before she could walk. The heartbreaking part is that Lori was looking for a wheel chair as she wasn't able to walk anymore.
